Imagine a place where children and adults with special needs can be themselves. Where they can bond with a special horse and develop lifelong relationships. Imagine a place where they can leave behind their crutches, wheel chairs, and therapies and ride to freedom. Imagine a place where dreams really do come true and lives are changed. When participants ride their horse, they become independent. They fill the arena with signals or commands to "walk on" or "trot" and the air is filled with laughter and shrieks of glee. Most of all, the riders at CHAMP are learning essential life skills, such as talking, signing, walking and focusing on their therapies and interacting with their horse and instructor.
